

Classroom Management

The principal, in cooperation with the building staff, will develop a common philosophical base and common expectations of student behavior for the building.

The teacher's classroom management procedures will be consistent with the Student Code of Conduct and the building's agreed upon expectations of student behavior.

Each teacher will develop classroom management rules and procedures appropriate to the subject matter and grade level of each class he/she has been assigned to teach prior to the offering of that class. These procedures will be submitted to the building principal for review and approval prior to distribution to or discussion with students.

Written classroom management rules and procedures shall be distributed to, and explained to, students before being implemented and shall be made available to parents within the first week of school.

Orientation of new students will include a discussion of classroom management rules and procedures. Each new student and parent will be provided with reference copies.

If changes in rules or procedures are made by the teacher, they will be submitted to the principal for review and approval. If approved, the changed rules or procedures will be discussed with, and distributed to, students and parents in a timely manner.
